

LIBRARY NEARLY FINISHED

More New Books Have Been Received, For Use in New Building.

Interior work on the Public Library is well advanced, and in a short time the building will be ready for occupancy. It's a handsome building and people are going to be well pleased with it. Doubtless there will be an Opening Day, and it can be made an event of general interest, but plans have not yet been concluded for that.

The librarian, Miss Emma Christ, is working over the old books, rebinding those which need it, and the result is a great improvement in their appearance. Quite a lot of new books have also arrived, but will not be opened until the new building is in use. It is quite likely that there will be greatly increased activity among patrons of the Library after the transformation into new quarters has been accomplished.

The Peabody Gazette Herald, February 19, 1914, page 1.